

PSYC*6670, Course Outline: Winter 2016

General Information

Course Title: Research Methods

Course Description:

Calendar description: “This course emphasizes those techniques most frequently used in applied and field settings. These include: quasi-experimental designs, survey research, interviewing, questionnaire design, observational techniques, and other more qualitative methods.”

This course aims to familiarize students with the variety of research methodologies useful in the study and practice of Industrial/Organizational Psychology. As such, its goal is not to develop expertise in a particular methodology, but to provide students with general knowledge of the basic issues relevant to commonly used methodologies. Emphasis will be placed on the advantages and disadvantages of specific methods and on the factors that must be considered when choosing among them.

Course Policies

Grading Policies

Please note that late assignments will not be accepted. The nature of this course does not allow for people to get behind in their assignments. If there is a compelling reason for an assignment to be handed in after the due date, then of course, no points will be deducted. But, if such a reason exists, you must contact me BEFORE the due date.

Course Policy regarding use of electronic devices and recording of lectures:

Electronic recording of classes is expressly forbidden without consent of the instructor. When recordings are permitted they are solely for the use of the authorized student and may not be reproduced, or transmitted to others, without the express written consent of the instructor.

Academic Misconduct

The University of Guelph is committed to upholding the highest standards of academic integrity and it is the responsibility of all members of the University community, faculty, staff, and students to be aware of what constitutes academic misconduct and to do as much as possible to prevent academic offences from occurring.

University of Guelph students have the responsibility of abiding by the University's policy on academic misconduct regardless of their location of study; faculty, staff and students have the responsibility of supporting an environment that discourages misconduct. Students need to remain aware that instructors have access to and the right to use electronic and other means of detection. Please note: Whether or not a student intended to commit academic misconduct is not relevant for a finding of guilt. Hurried or careless submission of assignments does not excuse students from responsibility for verifying the academic integrity of their work before submitting it. Students who are in any doubt as to whether an action on their part could be construed as an academic offence should consult with a faculty member or faculty advisor.

The Academic Misconduct Policy is detailed in the Graduate Calendar:

Accessibility

The University of Guelph is committed to creating a barrier-free environment. Providing services for students is a shared responsibility among students, faculty and administrators. This relationship is based on respect of individual rights, the dignity of the individual and the University community's shared commitment to an open and supportive learning environment. Students requiring service or accommodation, whether due to an identified, ongoing disability or a short-term disability should contact the Centre for Students with Disabilities as soon as possible.
